

Eighth Grade Required Reading Assignment: Double Entry Journal

A double entry journal shows your conversation with the text. It enables you, the reader, to respond to the book in a personal and analytical way. Furthermore, it forces you to pause and reflect on what the author has communicated, thereby strengthening your reading comprehension ability.

DIRECTIONS

You will be required to make a minimum of 1 double journal entry for every 1-2 chapters.

1. Use the left-hand side of the page to record a sentence or sentences from the text. Copy the passage exactly as it is written. It can be a key event, interesting language, a critical fact, a main idea, a problem, a character sketch, etc. Remember to write the page number.
2. Use the right-hand side of the page to respond to your selected passage. You can respond with feelings, questions, connections, explanations, theories, analyses, predictions, etc. Remember to respond with at least two (2) clear and complete sentences. You may use the sample sentence starters.

What the Text Says

"The flower garden was strained with rotting brown magnolia petals and iron weeds grew rank amid the purple phlox...the last graveyard flowers were blooming."

My Response

From the onset of the story, James Hurst creates the image of death through his description of the dying flowers and specific reference to the "graveyard flowers." The tone is heavy and dark creating a sense of foreboding. It is clear that the beauty of the story may be part of the sadness. I think this means someone might be sick or die.
